

You can do as Christ did,
In your daily life.

In so doing, you can be
An example to all,

But none will benefit
So much as you.

It is not what we are given
That determines,

Not what we have to deal with
Or what we have to deal with with.

Within the limits of our limits,
With the little we have to work with,

Sometimes, with only words, we create.

We make things matter with concern,

And as we do we show and we see
The most important

In the smallest and most everyday.

In the Smallest and Most Everyday

What have you made
Of what you have?

You can only make the same
Of more.

Make the most
Of what you have,

And there you will find
Unlimited resources.

Those who do not appreciate
What they have

Are ever impoverished,
No matter how much.

Those who do appreciate
What they have

Are ever enriched,
No matter how little.

Those who do not appreciate
Themselves and others

Are oblivious to all,
But things,

And all to them
Are things.

When such wield power,
Great or small,

It is without regard
For what it is like

To be subjected
To their treatment.

When Christ was crucified,
He did not curse his executioners.

He prayed, "Father, forgive them,
For they know not what they do."

Many others have done
As Christ did,

And blessed
Their oppressors.
